From the President's Desk..... by Douglas V. Duey, President

The Thanksgiving Holiday made me curious about whether our Cass County pioneers celebrated on Thanksgiving. I went to our museum and read through many of the Furlong diaries which date from 1861-1915. They are beautiful tiny leather bound books and are a treasure for our collections. What I found in my research, however, was that the author and his family didn't apparently celebrate any holidays like we do today. I found that the author worked literally 365 days each year. As I walked through the museum I stopped by a show case that contains children's toys that span 130 years. Looking at those toys brought back memories of Christmas, 1957. It was that year that my brother received a Lionel train set from Santa and I received a build-it-yourself transistor radio. My dad and I had fun building it and it is something I've kept all of these years.

After leaving the museum, I walked down main street in Plattsmouth and looked at the holiday decorations, the dozens of Christmas trees lining the street and the street lamps entwined with pine boughs. I glanced up at the 50 ft. spruce tree in the museum courtyard and remembered that within a few days it will be draped with Christmas lights which will be lighted following a caroling session the evening of December 2nd. I drove around the county and found that even our smallest communities have decorations going up in their business districts. All of this caused me to consider that not so much has changed over the past 60 years when it comes to small communities celebrating the holiday season.

In 1957 outdoor decorations were a bit sparse compared to today, but my father was determined not to be outdone by our neighbors that year. He purchased a dozen 6' stovepipes and when assembled they looked like candy canes. He painted them white then wrapped them in stripes of red scotch-brite tape. He staked each candy-cane near the street curb on street-side of our corner-lot house and they glowed brightly as car headlights illuminated the red tape. That same year he made a life sized sleigh, containing Santa, pulled by two reindeer, out of plywood and then attached the ensemble to the edge of our roof. I was proud of what he had accomplished that holiday season.

Other Americans were beginning to get back into a Holiday mood as well in 1957. After a deep depression that lasted a decade, followed by WWII which lasted 6 years and claimed the lives of many millions, Americans were beginning to get back to a more normal life. In fact the 1950's experienced phenomenal economic growth in America. This was at least in part due to the GI Bill which enabled returning soldiers to obtain homes and educations. Subdivisions for homes were introduced as well as backyard barbeques. In 1956 President Eisenhower signed the Federal Aid Highway Act which ushered in the construction of our interstate highway system. In 1957 cars had bigger tail fins, more lights and more powerful engines. The average car sold for $2,749. The average cost of a home was $12,220, Average monthly rent was $90. Average yearly wage was $4,550, gasoline was 24 cents and children's shoes were $5.95. Black and white televisions introduced Perry Mason and Maverick that year and Lucy and Ricky as well as Ozzie and Harriet and Leave it to Beaver were popular TV shows. Slinky toys and Hoola Hoops were all the rage as well as Frisbees which became available that year. Little Richard and Elvis Presley made the news regularly and the baby boom was in full swing.

It seems to me that even during times like these with tremendous social and political division in our country that the holiday season brings Americans back together. Let this season be a time of healing, love and peace for all. Happy Holidays to you!
